MISCHIEF MAKER

Now Strong and Robust.

An adult's good that can save a baby proves itself to be nourishing and easily digested and good for big and little folks. A Brooklyn man says:

"When our baby was about seven months old he began to grow thin and pale. This was attributed to the heat and the fact that his teeth were coming but in reality, the poor little thing was starving. His mother's milk not being sufficient nourishment."

"One day after he had cried bitterly for an hour, I suggested that my wife try him on Grape-Nuts. She soaked two teaspoonsful in half a cup of warm water for five or six minutes. Then poured off the liquid and to it added a like amount of rich milk and a little sugar. This baby ate ravenously."

"It was not many days before he forgot all about being nursed, and has since lived almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. Today this boy is strong and robust, and as cute a mischief-maker as a thirteen months old baby is expected to be."

"Use this letter any way you wish for my wife and I can never praise Grape-Nuts enough after the brightness it has brought to our household. Grape-Nuts is not made for a baby food, but experience with thousands of babies shows it to be among the best, if not entirely the best in use. Being a scientific preparation of Nature's grains, it is equally effective as a body and brain builder for grown-ups. 'There's a Reason.'"

Breakdown of Labor
Laws Greatest Cause
Of Industrial Unrest*Says Report of United States
Commission on Industrial Relations.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Summaries of the report, three in number, of the United States Commission on Industrial Relations as to findings and recommendations for the information of Congress, were made public last night.

The commission, which ceases to exist today, was composed of three representatives each of the employers, the employed, and the general public. It became apparent some time ago that they would be unable to agree on a single report, and it is said that none of the reports given out can properly be called a "majority" report.

The personnel of the commission follows: Frank P. Walsh, Missouri, chairman; John R. Commons, Wisconsin, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, representing the public; R. H. Ashton, Illinois, representing the employers; and S. Thurston Ballard, Kentucky, representing the employed; and John B. Lemon, Illinois; James O'Connell, District of Columbia, and A. B. Garretson, Iowa, representing the employed.

The report of the representatives of the employers, known as the "Staff" report, drawn up by Basil M. Manly, director of research and investigation for the commission, was signed by Commissioners Walsh, Lennon, O'Connell and Garretson. In connection with the main report, these commissioners issued three supplemental opinions and suggestions as follows: One by Mr. Walsh, one by Mr. Garretson, and one by Mr. Lennon and Mr. O'Connell jointly.

The report of the commissioners representing the public, known as the "Staff" report, was written by Commissioner Commons. He and Mrs. Harriman signed it without reservation. Commissioners Ashton, Ballard and Weinstein, approved it in large part and report their dissent to portions of it, and to the Manly report as expressed in the so-called "Weinstock" report, signed by Weinstein, Ashton and Ballard.

The reports are identified as the Manly, or Staff report, the Commons, or report of the commissioners for the public, and the Weinstein report, which among other things expressed dissent from the findings of the other two reports.

The Manly summary finds "that the cause of industrial unrest grows themselves almost without exception under four main sources which include all the others. They are:

"1. Unjust distribution of wealth and income.

"2. Unemployment and denial of opportunity to earn a living.

"3. Denial of justice in the creation, in the adjudication and in the administration of the law.

"4. Denial of the right and opportunity to form and join organizations. Remedies are suggested.

On the same subject the Commons report says:

"The greatest cause of industrial unrest is the breakdown of the labor laws and the distrust of municipal, state and national governments on the part of a large portion of our people." The report outlines a plan for remedying conditions through the institution of a permanent "industrial commission and advisory council" with comprehensive powers.

The Weinstein report dissents from the recommendation that the secondary boycott should be legalized, finds that employees have many just grievances and are thoroughly justified in organizing. It explains the prime objections have to recognizing and dealing with organized labor as follows: Sympathy for union politics, contract breaking, restriction of output, prohibition of the use of non-union made tools and materials, closed shop, contests for supremacy between rival unions, acts of violence against non-union workers and the properties of employers, and apprenticeship rules.

Owing to its length it was impossible for the printers to provide the full summary of the Manly report. This latter report consists of three sections, only the first of which was given out. The second section will be made public August 24, and the third section for publication August 26.

The full text of the three reports, which contain an aggregate of more than 200,000 words, is in the hands of the printer, and probably will not be available to the public for several days. For this reason summaries were prepared for publication. That of the Manly report was epitomized by George P. West, director of publicity for the commission; that of the employers by Mr. Weinstein, and that of the representatives of the public by Mr. Commons.

The "supplemental opinions and suggestions" of Commissioner Garretson and Commissioner Lennon were made last night, while those of Walsh, O'Connell and Lennon are expected to be given out at a later date.

The commission conducted hearings during 154 days, and heard 740 witnesses. Of the latter 230 were affiliated with the employers; 245 with labor and 265 were not affiliated with either group.

In addition there were reports of field agents and investigators of the commission.

There was a difference of opinion in the commission as to the value of the work of the field agents. The Manly report accepts the reports of these investigators as impartial and the Manly summary explains that "where interests are affected, statements of fact are based entirely on testimony of those witnesses whose interests might be regarded as adversely affected."

The Commons summary says on this subject:

"In giving reasons for disregarding the report of investigators for the commission, the report says that its signers do not consider that the investigations were complete as they were not submitted as all parties at interest to be checked up as to facts."

The Weinstein summary says concerning the work of the field agents:

"We find that the alleged findings of act and, in a general way, the comments made thereon in the report of this commission, without the endorsement, however, of the commission, so manifestly partisan and unfair that we cannot give them endorsement."

In addition to the three main reports and the individual opinions and suggestions, the commission, according to announcement by Mr. West, will make public on August 27 a report on the Colorado strike, and a few days later a report on the situation of the structural iron workers.
